

I wish we lived in a world where one did not have to ponder the topic of this book, a place where actions were more intuitive, art was more spontaneous, and laughter more common. A place where conflict was minimal and the effects of economics were felt more than studied. Where the actions of soul flowed like water as dictated by perfect Nature - each of us a droplet on a wave.

Unfortunately, that world is not the one in which we currently live, darkness chases and we are forced to study such things.
